Hello GE! My name is Alan Ayala and I believe in developing unique solutions to innovative problems.

I read more about your opening for a Software Engineer and I believe my professional goals align with yours. As a freelancer, I've built my career in a variety of roles and projects, mostly by working in small projects where I was not just the Front End Engineer but also UI designer, SEO specialist, and content manager. I'm not only used to wearing many hats, I sincerely enjoy it; I thrive in an environment where no two days look the same.

In addition to being flexible and adaptable, I'm also a big believer in attention to detail – particularly when it comes to user interfaces and code scalability. One of my recent projects involved creating a platform for a clinic to provide access to spa and medical service bookings in React and Redux. The project required attention to detail to provide a scalable foundation for engineers to build upon. I believe in applying this same level of attention to detail to tasks as visible as prepping mockups for a product and as glanced over as making sure all images and assets are optimized.

If you think we might be a good fit please contact me through my phone number or email listed on my resume. I would love to talk more.

Sincerely Alan Ayala
